

FIN200: Traveling at UF (Spend Authorization): On Behalf of an Employee

Created By Brady Allred • Current Version

How to Use This Course

Brady Allred Jun 11, 2026

We need to include the Concur booking aspect somewhere including the use of the new questionnaire survey about why they did not book through UFGO if they didn't.

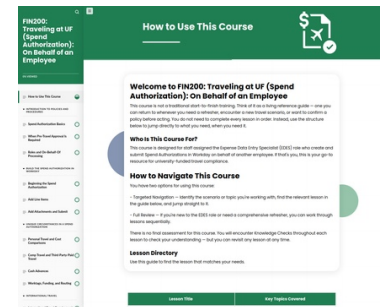

Brady Allred Jun 11, 2026

Is this better included here or in the expense course? reevaluate

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 9, 2026

I think at the end of this course, if we tell them on the ER it is too late

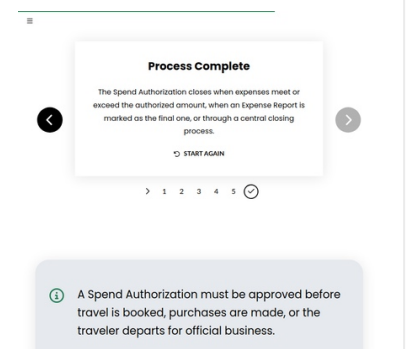

What a Spend Authorization Is and Why It Comes First

"Create a separate Spend Authorization for each employee, guest, or student traveling as a payee."

I agree generally but I know on the case of group travel for PKY, they do not list out their students or add them as attendees to expenses. Typically, an employed adult submits a TR and provides a list of students they are bringing. I dont know if we can get away with saying exceptions apply.

Does This Trip Need a Spend Authorization?

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

I think it is enough to just say Approvers should pay close attention to the attendee field.

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

I'd axe

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 9, 2026

UF will not reimburse the guest

If a UF employee is paying for the guest's travel using a TCard or Air Card, add the guest profile to Attendees on the employee's applicable expense lines.

The guest profile is used to record the guest's participation. It:

does not require External Committee Member setup cannot receive reimbursement directly does not authorize the guest's travel

The guest does not need a separate Spend Authorization.

UF will reimburse the guest or student directly

If UF will reimburse the traveler directly, the traveler must first be set up as an External Committee Member before a Spend Authorization can be created.

The traveler then receives a separate Spend Authorization and is the payee for their own reimbursement.

JE

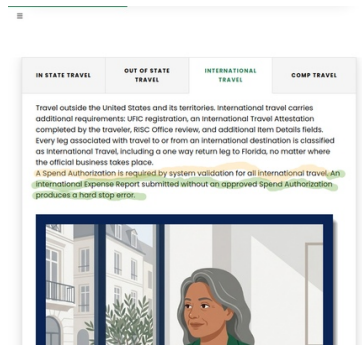

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 9, 2026

also the header for the first tab should read UF WILL NOT REIMBURSE THE GUEST OR STUDENT

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Personal Travel

If personal travel is combined with business travel, select Personal Travel on the applicable line and enter the personal travel start and end dates.

The Spend Authorization dates should cover the entire trip, including personal days.

UF reimbursement is limited to the cost of the most direct business-only itinerary, so a cost comparison may be required.

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

List of Foreign Entities

List the international entities the traveler plans to visit or engage with, such as agencies, universities, institutions, or partner organizations.

Include all known entities, even for brief visits. This information supports the RISC review.

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

field is always present, only required when checkbox is selected

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Bringing UF Property on the Trip

Select this option when UF-owned property will travel with the traveler, such as a laptop or other university equipment.

For international travel, additional export control steps may be required. Follow the instructions provided in the International Travel Attestation and myAssets.

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Origination

Enter the city and state where the travel begins for that leg.

Make sure the Origination and Destination are accurate for each line.

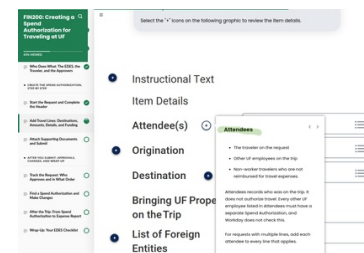

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Attendees

Search for the attendee if they already have a Workday profile, such as an employee or contingent worker.

If the person does not have a profile to reference, create a new attendee. The attendee will be saved for future use.

If the Spend Authorization has multiple lines, add the attendee to each applicable line.

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Top section – Financial Approvers

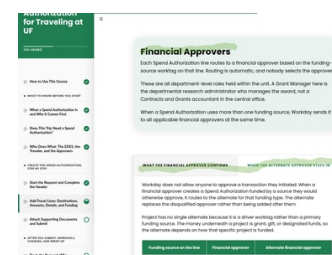

Workday automatically routes each Spend Authorization line to the appropriate financial approver based on the funding worktags. If multiple funding sources are used, the request may route to more than one financial approver.

Tab 1 – What the Financial Approver Confirms

Financial approvers review the funding on the line to confirm it is appropriate and available. If something needs to change, they send the Spend Authorization back for correction.

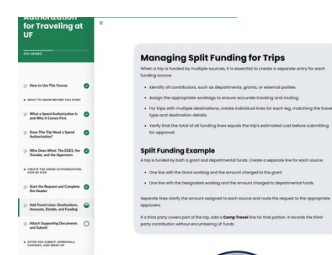

Tab 2 – When an Alternate Approver Steps In

A person cannot approve a transaction they initiated. When this occurs, Workday automatically routes the request to an alternate approver. Keep Table

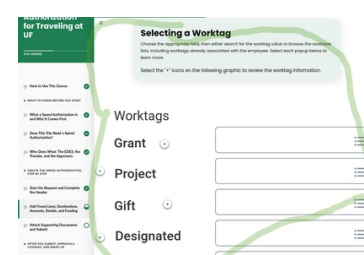

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

mentioned earlier, is this repetitive? I like this callout better though

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

this section should stay

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

i dont believe this section belongs in this course, they should learn about worktags before they start doing transactions

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Estimating Trip Costs

Estimate the trip based on expected costs. Meal estimates differ by travel type: domestic travel uses the $36 daily allowance, while international travel uses the applicable U.S. Department of State M&IE rate.

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Cash Advance Requested

Select this option only when a cash advance is needed. Non-workers are not eligible for cash advances.

Create the cash advance as a separate line from the regular travel estimate. Use the same Expense Item as the related travel line, select Cash Advance Requested, and enter the justification in Item Details.

For example, if the trip is estimated at $2,000 and $500 is requested as a cash advance:

Travel line: $1,500

Cash advance line: $500

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Briefly explain how you arrived at the estimated amount for the line, including the types of expenses included, such as airfare, lodging, or per diem.

Departments may have different requirements for how estimates are calculated or documented. Follow your unit's guidance, which may include providing a more detailed breakdown or attachment.

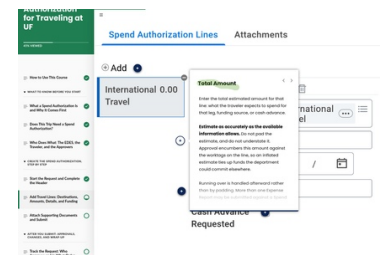

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Total Amount

Enter the estimated amount for this line based on the information available.

Estimate as accurately as possible. Do not inflate the amount to create a cushion.

The amounts entered across all lines should represent the total estimated cost of the trip.

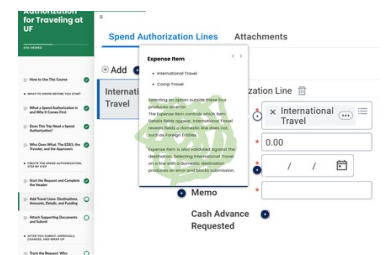

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Expense Item

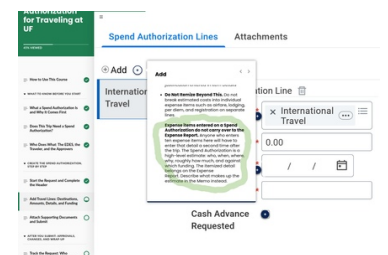

Select the Expense Item that matches the travel type. This determines which Item Details fields appear.

The Expense Item must also match the destination. For example, International Travel cannot be used for a domestic trip.

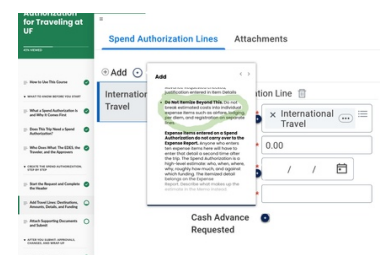

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

I'd pull this out of the add+ section and put sooner

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

you cannot itemize beyond this point

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Add Lines

Every Spend Authorization requires at least one line of estimated expenses. Create separate lines when the trip has multiple destinations or multiple funding sources.

For example, if a traveler is going to Chicago and Atlanta and the trip is split between two funding sources, separate lines are needed for each destination and funding source combination:

Chicago — Funding Source A

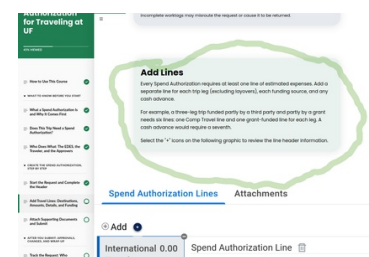

Chicago — Funding Source B

Atlanta — Funding Source A

Atlanta — Funding Source B

If a cash advance is needed, add a separate cash advance line.

Select the “+” icons in the graphic below to learn more about the information entered on each line.

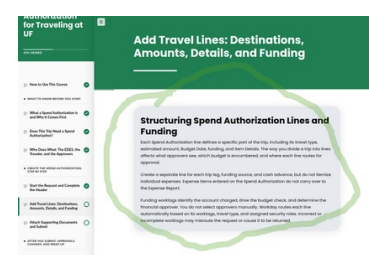

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 10, 2026

Structuring Spend Authorization Lines and Funding

Each Spend Authorization line represents a specific part of the trip and includes the travel type, estimated amount, Budget Date, funding, and Item Details.

Create separate lines when the trip has different destinations, funding sources, or a cash advance. You do not need to itemize individual expenses on the Spend Authorization; those details are entered on the Expense Report.

Funding worktags identify where the expense is charged and help determine approval routing. Certain grant-funded transactions may also be subject to a budget check. Workday routes the request automatically based on the information entered—you do not select the approver.

Cost comparisons are not only for personal travel

Personal Travel Cost Comparisons

When a trip includes personal days of activities no more than the cost of the most direct business route, a cost comparison document that rule would have cost.

- A valid cost comparison
- reflects the most direct business route
- shows the trip up through no personal travel was included
- cannot have the starting point or home address as the travel agency partner
- is not limited to a single number or a single number of stops

Below is designated the personal travel days you entered in item details. International travel should be included directly before and after the university business, and any deviation should be documented.

Finalizing Your Spend Authorization: Preparing for Submission

Submitting a Spend Authorization is the last point at which the person who built the request controls what the requestor sees. Check a review workflow or requestor who cannot act on the information provided will send it back, and the request starts its approval sequence over. Reviewing carefully now, allowing workflow your requestor expects, and clearing every error before you submit is what keeps it successful.

Understand what information is visible to you, the traveler, and others involved in the request.

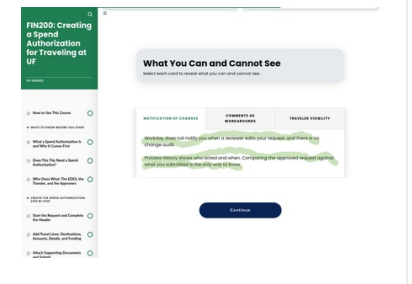

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

❤️ excellent suggestion

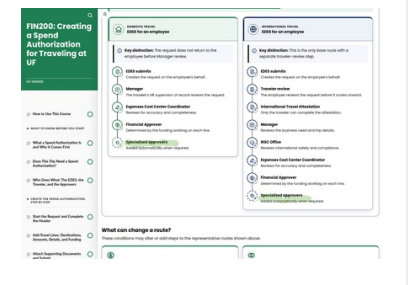

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

I am cautious about saying this...there is an audit trail but not visible to end users. I am not sure who they could compare the approved request against what was submitted since it's not formally tracking changes

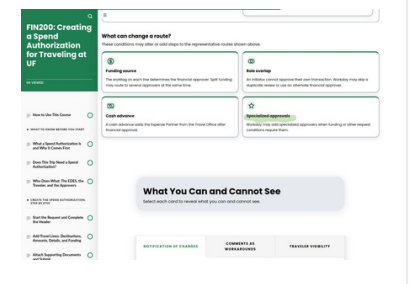

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

Alternate Approvers

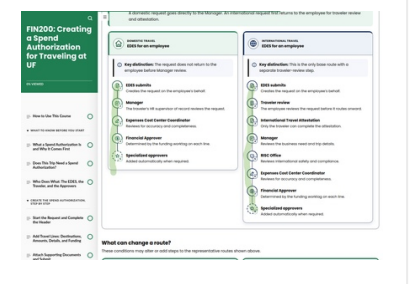

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

we have been communicating "Alternate Approvers"

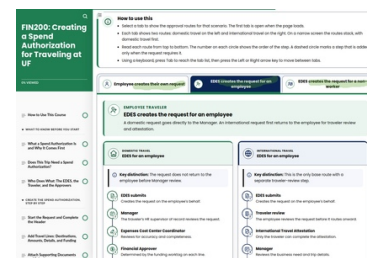

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

I think it would be helpful to color each role, might be easier to tell who is doing what and when

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026
change to "initiates"

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026
Step 1 – What Happens After You Submit

When you create a Spend Authorization on behalf of someone else, Workday automatically routes it to the appropriate reviewers and approvers. You do not select the standard approval path.

Step 2 – Who Reviews the Request

Domestic Employee Travel
Manager → ECCC → Financial Approver

International Employee Travel
Employee → Manager → RISC → ECCC → Financial Approver

For international travel, the employee receives the request first to complete the required International Travel Attestation.

Non-Worker Travel
ECCC → Financial Approver

Step 3 – When Routing Changes

Workday automatically handles alternate routing when someone cannot approve because of a role conflict.

If an additional reviewer is needed for a specific request, Add Approvers may be used. Department-specific approval chains cannot be built into the standard workflow.

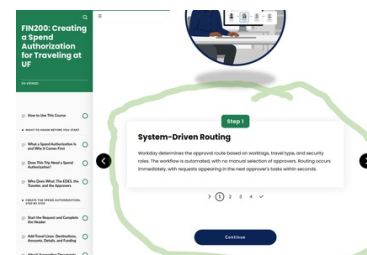

Step 4 – Track the Request

Use Process History to see where the Spend Authorization is in the approval process, who has already acted, and who it is currently awaiting.

If a reviewer sends the request back, make the requested corrections and resubmit it.

Good to Know

When employees create their own Spend Authorization, domestic requests follow the same Manager → ECCC → Financial Approver path. International requests begin with the Manager because the traveler completes the attestation while creating the request.

This would be a good section for a carousel

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

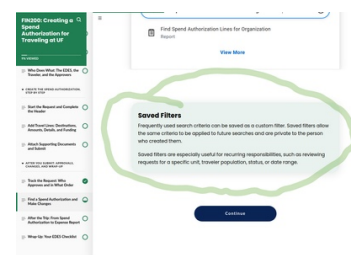

Card 1 — Start the Change Open the Spend Authorization and select Change. If the request is still in Draft, select Edit instead. Card 2 — Update the Request Revise the applicable travel, funding, amount, attachment, or other trip details. Use the Justification field to briefly explain what changed. Card 3 — Resubmit for Approval Submit the updated Spend Authorization. The request will restart the approval process and route through the applicable reviewers and approvers again. Then either end with a small reminder below the carousel: Changes to an approved Spend Authorization must be resubmitted for approval.

Find Spend Authorization Lines for Organization

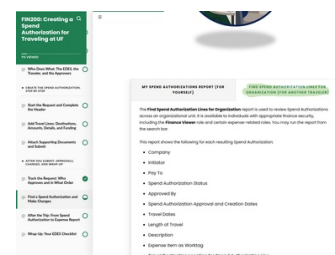

Use this report to review Spend Authorizations for travelers in your organization. It is available to users with the appropriate finance security.

The report includes key details such as traveler, status, travel dates, destination, line amount, funding, remaining balance, attendees, and related Expense Reports.

It is especially useful for:

- Confirming whether a Spend Authorization already exists before creating one on someone else's behalf.
- Identifying approved trips that do not yet have a related Expense Report.
- Reviewing outstanding balances and funding information.

Search for Find Spend Authorization Lines for Organization from the Workday search bar.

My Spend Authorizations

Use this report to review Spend Authorizations for your own travel. It is available from the Expenses Hub or by searching for the report directly.

The report shows key details such as travel dates, status, total authorized amount, remaining balance, and related Expense Reports.

Use the Total and Remaining Balance to see how much of the Spend Authorization has been applied to Expense Reports.

After the Trip: From Spend Authorization to Expense Report

JE

I almost feel like we are jumping a bit, prior to trip is spend auth, then booking, then expense report

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

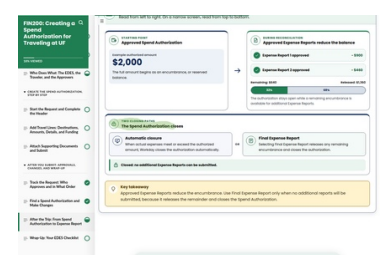

I think we can axe this section

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

there are 3 including Mass Close Event which can only be initiated by the core office, I dont know what the schedule will be but they will be able to assist with the maintenance of spend auth encumbrances

JE

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

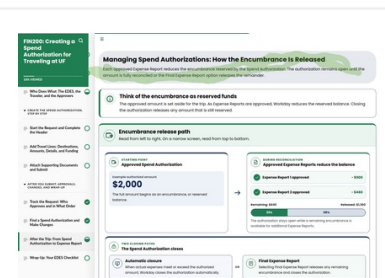

The Travel Team will also have ability to mass close spend auths, so without over explaining I am thinking:

Managing Spend Authorizations: How the Encumbrance Is Released

Each approved Expense Report reduces the amount encumbered by the Spend Authorization. Any remaining balance stays encumbered until the Spend Authorization is closed.

Think of the encumbrance as reserved funds

The approved amount is set aside for the trip. As Expense Reports are approved, Workday reduces the reserved balance. Any amount still remaining is released when the Spend Authorization is closed.

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

Pre-Travel: Spend Authorization

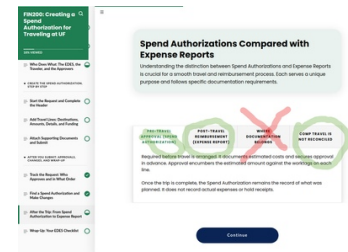

Documents the planned trip, estimated costs, and approved funding before travel.

Post-Travel: Expense Report

Documents actual expenses, receipts, and reimbursement after travel. Expense details and worktags do not carry over from the Spend Authorization and must be entered on the Expense Report.

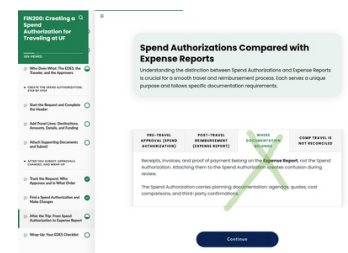

Comp Travel

Compensatory Travel is documented on the Spend Authorization only. Because there is no UF-funded expense to reconcile, it is not carried to an Expense Report.

Wrap-Up: Your EDES Checklist

jenah.george@ufl.edu Sep 11, 2026

Checklist is too long:

Wrap-Up: Your EDES Checklist

Before you submit a Spend Authorization on someone else's behalf, confirm the following:

Choose the correct traveler and Spend Authorization task.

Confirm the business purpose, travel dates, and traveler information are accurate.

Build the Spend Authorization lines correctly for each destination, funding source, and cash advance.

Estimate costs as accurately as possible and enter the appropriate funding worktags.

Complete the required Item Details and attach any supporting documentation.

Review the request for errors and alerts before submitting.

Remember that Workday automatically routes the request to the applicable reviewers and approvers.

After travel, make sure the trip is reconciled through the Expense Report process.
